The Jews in Buss a.

As a chapter of history the popular movement in Russia agains; the Jews has been only second in importance to that of Natilism. The Jews have been expelled from Russia at diff rent times since the eleventh ceciury. Toeir only proice or was Alexander I., who become Cz r in 1801. Oa the accession of Nicholas, in 1825, they were prohibited from estrying no the smaller trades, but were allowed to be bill brokers, contractors, etc., on paging a very neavy impost for the privilege. This and many other impressive errotments seem never to have been effectually carried out, since a rigorous enforcement of them would have largely disorganized the social machinery of the country. Although treated as sliens to other respects the Jews were subjected by Niencles to the conscription, and that, too, without the ordinary exemptions. In fact, if a Jew e caped the conscription a Jewish child was taken, and after being brought up in the or hed x faith in some distant province was enrocked as a substituce. Many of these Jews were among the nost that was rolled back from the beigh s of lokermann. In 1846 it w. decreed that the long beard, cattan, girdle and cap of sable which had been made bigatory, should only be worn by those who took out a license certing fifty rubles. A few years after it was enacted that the Jewish women should not cut their bair upon their m ?riage and wear a head covering, as had heretofore been their custom. In 1851 the yoke was little lightened by the repeal of regulations which exacted a large sum as a sort of safer at other religious teachers. One child of each Jew-ish family had to be brought up as a Christain, and residence in the holy cities of Kieff and Moscow was interdicted to Israelites. But their liberties have grown with the liber-ties of Euraia, and the rule exercised over them is row comparatively chement.

duct on leaving the empire. But still until after the death of Nicholas amid the closing scenes of the Crimean war, no Jew could pors land in Kussis, nor was his evidence received in a court of justice. The rabbins did not enjoy the immunity from flagellation accorded to

The Jewish population of the empire includes some five-sevenths of the whole number settled in Kurone. Their religion is tolerated; they arallowed to erectsynsgogue; they have municipal privileges, and carry on much of the commerces. The Traveler who Wisely Provides of Russia. At the same time no Jaw can the above supattern rank in the army. They do not enter society. No boyar dines with them or invites them to his house. The Ressian noble uses them, but declines to mix with them.

The Cry for Rest. Sound sleep gives as the only rest we need and must have. It is a genuine cure all. It will build up and make strong a weak body. The fact is, that as life becomes concentrated, and its pursuits more eager, short sleep and early riging become impossible. We take mire sleep than our ancestors, and we take more because we want more. The faculty of being able to sleep at any time or place amounts to a positive telent, and is well worth cultiveting. An engineer has been known to fall asleep within a boiler, while his fellows were beating on the outside with their ponderous hammers; and the renose or a miller is cot iccommoded by the poise of his mill. Men have best koown to fall asleep amid the thunders of a baute. Some of the great Generals whose names are familiar to us have had a wonderful power of elecping, for s tes moments, even on the bettlefield. The Duke of Wellington just before the attack on St. 1 Sebastian, in Spain tound that the breaching bat teries would not be ready to open the attack for 2 bour. "The best thing we can do," "is to sleep," and slipping off his borse toto a treech, he was asleep to an instant. Napoleon, at the very crisis of the important battle of Wagram, ordered up his reserve, which he never did except in areat emergencies. Confident that the movement would be carried out, and would insure the victory, he ordered his bear skip to be spread on the ground and io a moment he was in deep sleep, which lasted for about twenty minute-, when he awoke greatly refreshed. A ranged die simply from inability to sleep. In order to enjoy retreshing sleep, it is necessary the the thod be nor concentrated in the head. tu. be diffused equally through all parts of the b.dy. This is probably the ressoo why a warm bath just before going to bed is so conducive to a good night's repos. The mind should be kept perfectly calm and quiet, as exci ement is sleep's death blow. CHAMPAGNE SPARKLING CIDER, at McBur-NEY'S.
